Suspected toy toxin restricted

Phthalates are suspected to cause developmental, behavioural problems: Health Canada ◐ Federal health minister announced restrictions yesterday

New federal rules drastically reducing use of chemicals called phthalates in toys and baby items are long overdue according to one Ottawa "mompreneur."

Gwen Leron is an Ottawa mother of two who runs Nayla Natural Care, an online store offering organic baby products. She's pleased Canada is catching up with European and U.S. regulations.

"It's great now that Canada's part of it, so hopefully that'll get us safer products for the kids," she said.

She got the idea for her store after her first daughter was born and she had difficulty finding products that didn't contain potentially harmful chemicals.

"For someone that doesn't know how to read the product labels with the ingredients it is kind of scary for them because they don't know what they're putting on their children's skin or having them play with in playtime, so it is kind of disturbing." ● STEVE COLLINS

"I have a good idea of the products that are safe, like toys and skin care products, but for someone who's not in the know ... it's easy to just pick up something that contains these chemicals."

Feds' cuts squeeze ESL tutors

The executive director of an Ottawa organization that helps newcomers integrate into Canadian society said a recent government $71,000 funding cutback will mean it will have to turn away some clients.

"A lot of these people are refugees from Afghanistan, Iraq, Iran, so there's a lot of stress in their personal lives in a new country," said Mita Basu of English Language Tutoring for the Ottawa Community (ELTOC).

The Ottawa-based nonprofit organization provides at-home English language training for new immigrants who are new parents, physically disabled, or those with multiple jobs. Basu said the bulk of funding comes from Citizenship and Immigration Canada, but with less money this year, her staff is likely to have a smaller clientele and smaller pay cheques.

"Our resources, money to buy books, photocopying — all of that will have to be reduced drastically," she said.

Kelly Brockwell, an ESL education counsellor, says she fears her salary will also be reduced.

According to Citizenship and Immigration Canada, the number of immigrants to Ontario has decreased since 2005.

Watson mum on budget

▶ New spending must be balanced with equal amount of spending cuts, mayor says ▶ Watson confident police services board will stay within 2.5 per cent tax increase

SEAN MCKIBBON
@METRONEWS.CA

When Mayor Jim Watson unveils the city's new budget with a promised 2.5 per cent tax increase today, there shouldn't be any doubt who the authors are.

Tight-lipped about the content, Watson said yesterday at a meeting of the Ottawa Chamber of Commerce he deliberately limited those involved so details wouldn't leak out.

"It's my responsibility to go out and defend the budget, and you can't defend something if you haven't had any input into it," said Watson, who said he developed the budget with city manager Kent Kirkpatrick, the city's treasurer and city department heads.

The budget, he said, will not have a lot of surprises and will reflect residents' values and his own campaign platform. Among Watson's promises were a pledge to freeze salaries for senior managers for two years, cut the city's use of outside consultants and cut his own office's budget by 10 per cent. His platform also included promises to fix up social housing and freeze recreational fees for the next four years.

"It's going to be a well thought out document that is sustainable," Watson said. "We're not going to make one-time decisions that just prolong the agony and put us in a deeper hole next year and the year after."

assaulted by Mexican police officers

Local authorities dispute her story

Ottawa is asking the Mexican government to "get to the bottom" of allegations a Canadian tourist was gang-raped and robbed by Mexican police on New Year's Eve.

"We have asked the Mexican ambassador not only to look at (this case) but we've asked him to set an inquiry in place," Foreign Affairs Minister Lawrence Cannon said yesterday.

Rebecca Rutland, 41, told the CBC she was vacationing in Playa del Carmen when a confrontation broke out between Mexican officers and her fiancé, Richard Coleman, 51. Rutland said she was taken to the police station and raped by two officers while a supervisor looked on.

Coleman said he learned about Rutland's alleged rape from fellow inmates and then tried to kill himself, hoping the act would draw attention to his partner's plight.

Mexican authorities said yesterday that Rutland and Coleman were intoxicated and "started a fight and attacked each other." They hit a car whose driver requested the assistance of the police, the Embassy of Mexico in Canada said.

Rutland filed a complaint at the district attorney's office after her release from jail and a formal investigation "immediately began," the embassy said.

The two best ways to treat a hangover

New research claims all you really need to cure a hangover is a cup of coffee and aspirin — at least if you're a rat with a soft spot for ethanol.

Professor Michael Oshinsky, of Thomas Jefferson University in Philadelphia, induced headaches in rodents by injecting them with ethanol. Ethanol, like many bar drinks, produces acetate in the body when it is metabolized, and it is here, he believes, where the cause of our post-drink head pain resides.

Rats feel our pain

Professor Michael Oshinsky insists that none of the commonly cited causes of hangovers could have caused the headaches in his lab rats.

- The rats were injected with ethanol, so they were not dehydrated.
- The pure alcohol used was also free of the toxins and additives often blamed for hangovers brought on by mass-produced booze.

Letter told priests to stay mum on child abuse

Sikhs with daggers can't come in: Officials

Several Sikhs were denied entry into the Quebec legislature yesterday amid a heated debate over multiculturalism and where to draw the line when it comes to tolerating cultural practices.

Security officials at the Assemblée Nationale refused to let them in because they were wearing kirpans, small stylized daggers worn by some religious Sikhs.

Four representatives from the World Sikh Organization of Canada had planned to attend public hearings but were told by security to leave their daggers at the door if they wanted to enter. They refused.

The provincial government reacted with cautious language to the decision.

The opposition Parti Québécois, meanwhile, applauded heartily and said Canadian-style multiculturalism was unwelcome in Quebec.

The timing of the incident was laden with symbolism as the subject of the hearings was accommodating immigrants.

TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

▶ A kirpan

The visitors had planned to attend legislative hearings into a bill that would set some limits on religious practices — namely, denying government services to Muslim women with covered faces.

The Sikhs said that, while their own religion forbids covering women's faces, they planned to speak out against the bill anyway, in the name of religious tolerance.

The Sikhs noted that legislatures in other provinces and in Ottawa had, unlike Quebec, allowed entry to Sikhs with kirpans.

"The national assembly has no written rules or policies regarding the kirpan, and we can't even find out who is making the decision to exclude us," said Balpreet Singh, the World Sikh Organization's legal counsel.

"Freedom of religion may be enshrined in Canada's charter, but that's meaningless unless we all stand up to protect the rights of religious minorities — especially when we disagree with their beliefs."

What title will the Queen give to Kate?

Monarchy staying mum Royal experts await word

If you're invited to the royal wedding, don't go buying Kate Middleton an engraved gift — the poor woman doesn't know yet what her title's going to be.

She will be a princess, possibly a duchess, perhaps even a countess. But the exact title is unlikely to be divulged until shortly before April 29, the day she officially joins "the firm" — as the Royal Family is known.

Most women face a straightforward choice when they prepare to walk down the aisle: Take their husband's name, keep their own, or combine the two with a hyphen. But Middleton's title, which will dictate what she is called, will be determined by the Queen, not Middleton herself.

BEN STANSALL/ GETTY IMAGE

Royal experts say it is possible Middleton could end up with the formal name Her Royal Highness Princess William of Wales.

The dilemma arises in part because William has not yet become the Prince of Wales — a title that traditionally goes to the heir to the throne — and does not hold a formal position, like the Duke of Cambridge, that could be automatically bestowed on Middleton, making her the Duchess of the same place.

Canada's Haitians glued to televisions

- Tense wait to hear about fate of former dictator
- Haiti fragile from cholera, quake and election chaos

Members of Canada's Haitian community were glued to TVs and radios yesterday, anxiously awaiting word on the fate of their homeland's former dictator.

Expats were kept on tenterhooks by reports that ex-president Jean-Claude (Baby Doc) Duvalier might face accusations of corruption and embezzlement, after more than a quarter-century of allegations that he pilfered their homeland's treasury.

Sentiments were mixed, with sharp divisions between those who still loathe Duvalier and others who believe the country was better under his rule and say the onetime teenage president was unfairly tarred by his father's reputation.

"We're waiting, we're listening — we're always in front of the radio," said Montreal hair salon owner Maryse Morency, who also kept one eye on the TV during the day.

There are about 100,000 Canadians of Haitian origin; many fled their homeland because of the rampant human-rights abuses committed by the Duvalier regime.

But Morency believes Duvalier's meeting with a judge yesterday was merely theatre — an attempt to calm tensions in Haiti and persuade the people their government is on the case.

"They say he's going to be put in prison, but I don't think so," said the 49-year-old, who left Haiti more than 30 years ago. "I think they're going to let him go."

She wants to know why Duvalier would have returned now, at such a fragile moment for a country already facing a cholera outbreak, a hotly disputed election and a slow recovery from last year's earthquake.

Duvalier was handed power as a teenager in 1971 and he continued his father's brutal repression of all political opposition.

But other expats, such as cab driver Clerveaux Gertilus, insist Baby Doc unfairly inherited his father's ruthless reputation, as well as his violent secret police force — the Tontons Macoutes.

"Will he have lots of ideas to lift Haiti from where it sits?" he asked.

"That's what we hope."

Economy better, but no hike in interest rates

Bank of Canada warned credit market has become overheated Worried about loonie at parity with U.S. dollar

The Bank of Canada says the economic recovery has gathered strength both at home and abroad, but not enough to encourage it to start raising interest rates from their current ultra-low levels. The central bank kept its trendsetting overnight rate at one per cent yesterday, the third time it has done so since September — and gave no clear indication as to when it might start tightening again.

The bank did say the recovery is proceeding at a faster pace than it anticipated, particularly the U.S., but cited ongoing risks, including sovereign debt difficulties in Europe and weak finances of international banks. It upgraded Canada's economic growth forecast to 2.4 per cent this year and 2.8 per cent next, slightly better than its last projection in October.

But economists had expected an even bigger revision, given that commodity prices had rebounded and the U.S. appears set for a much stronger year thanks to new policy initiatives to stimulate growth.

"It's a little more dovish than we would have expected ... frankly, their forecast revision from October is modest to say the least," said economist Douglas Porter of BMO Capital Markets. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Inflation

The bank noted that underlying inflation pressures remain subdued and there is still plenty of slack in the economy.

PRACTISE RANDOM ACTS OF KINDNESS

Just sayin'

PAUL SULLIVAN

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. was a great man.

I mean, he has his own holiday, observed across the U.S. this past Monday. Anyone responsible for a long weekend is great by definition.

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. was a giant in the field of human rights, winner of the Nobel Peace Prize and a great orator.

I really admire King, but he's kind of hard to live up to.

For example, he said: "Injustice anywhere is a threat to justice everywhere." He wrote that from a jail in Birmingham, Ala., into which he was thrown for non-violent protest on behalf of African-American rights.

He also said: "I submit to you that if a man hasn't discovered something he will die for, he isn't fit to live."

I wonder how many of us woke up this morning dedicated to that idea.

Then there is: "Life's most persistent and urgent question is: What are you doing for others?"

Sometimes I wish King had less to say.

I guess the beginning of a new year is always a good time to review what you're willing to die for or what you're doing for others, instead of the usual guff about diet and exercise.

I'll get back to you on the first one.

As for the second one, I could argue that this column is one thing I'm doing for others, but others could (and do) argue that it's one thing I'm doing TO others.

"'We believe that being kind to one another is fundamental to making the world a better place.'"

Actually, I found the quote about life's most persistent and urgent question on a website called People United, a little outfit in Canterbury, England, which is exclusively dedicated to something called kindness: "We believe that being kind to one another is fundamental to making the world a better place."

As mission statements go, it's hard to dispute. Kindness, apparently, "grows trust, friendship, and a common sense of community." A lack of kindness "breeds intolerance, injustice and inhumanity," all stuff King did not approve of.

It's something we can all do. A little kindness won't, um, kill us.

People United's recipe for kindness: "From a neighbourly smile and a helping hand to ongoing ethical conduct and active altruism, kindness is demonstrated in many different ways."

Don't forget to stir frequently.

Today, I'm following Step 1: The "neighbourly smile." It's a long way from "active altruism," but I need to start somewhere.

Regis retiring from TV

Distributors Disney-ABC Domestic Television said the Live franchise will continue New co-host will be named to join Ripa on talk show

For such a famously excitable guy, Regis Philbin made his big announcement with surprising calm: He's retiring from his show.

Philbin delivered the news at the start of yesterday's Live With Regis and Kelly, which he has hosted for more than a quarter-century, most recently sharing hosting duties with Kelly Ripa.

Regis said he would be stepping down from the show around the end of the summer, though he didn't specify a departure date.

"It's been a long time, it's been 28 years," Philbin said, speaking of his current Manhattan-based show. "It was the biggest thrill of my life to come back to New York, where I grew up as a kid watching TV in the early days, you know, never even dreaming that I would one day have the ability, or whatever it takes, to get in front of the camera and talk to it. ...

"There is a time that everything must come to an end for certain people on camera — especially certain old people," cracked Philbin, who turns 80 in August. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Twilight's Stewart opens up to Vogue

Kristen Stewart is living an atypical life for a 20-year-old. Ever since she took on the role of Bella Swan in the Twilight films, she's crossed over into youth-idol status where emotions run high and she has zero privacy.

The actress says in the February issue of Vogue magazine that she can't go to a shopping mall, and that it bothers her she can't be outside often.

Stewart is working on the final two films in the saga and says her wish is for the fans to be happy with the outcome.

Now that Twilight has made her a star, Stewart tells the magazine she's trying to figure out what to do with the money she's made from her work. Stewart says it would be "amazing" to help fund halfway houses. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Kidman, Urban have a little Faith

Daughter born to surrogate News leaked at Golden Globes after-party

Nicole Kidman and Keith Urban quietly welcomed a new baby last month, the actress announced.

"Keith Urban, Nicole Kidman and their two-year-old daughter, Sunday Rose, today announced a new addition to their family, Faith Margaret Kidman Urban," according to a statement from the family.

"Born through a gestational carrier at Nashville's Centennial Women's Hospital on Dec. 28, 2010, Faith Margaret is Urban and Kidman's biological daughter." METRO

"No words can adequately convey the incredible gratitude we feel for everyone."

The kid's all right, Lohan says

Michael Lohan insists his daughter, Lindsay Lohan, has turned over a new leaf since leaving rehab.

"We went to an AA meeting last night then went home and had a quiet night," Michael tells Hollyscoop. "She changed back to the girl she used to be. When she was at her best — literally. She's done a 1-80 and I'm very proud of her."

The proud father is also fine with Lindsay moving to bohemian hotspot Venice Beach instead of staying in Hollywood.

"I don't think it matters where someone lives because you're going to find the elements of addiction, the wrong people, and places no matter where you are," he says. METRO

Country Strong bond

Leighton Meester and Garrett Hedlund got cosy on-screen in Country Strong, but have they taken their work home with them? Us Weekly says the pair were "inseparable the entire night" at a Golden Globes after-party and were spotted leaving together. METRO

Talking points

Spears to adopt?

Britney Spears may be looking to expand her family through adoption, according to Australian magazine New Weekly. Spears has reportedly been advised against getting pregnant again, as she would have to stop taking antipsychotic medication, sources say. But boyfriend Jason Trawick might not be on board with the plan. "I know he likes the idea of getting married," a friend of Trawick's says. "But being dad to a house full of kids that aren't even his? I don't see it." METRO

Douglas' golden comeback

Michael Douglas' appearance at the Golden Globes over the weekend was his first since winning his battle with throat cancer, and he's understandably thrilled to be going about his business again. "Tumour's gone, and this type of cancer doesn't usually come back," he tells E! News at the awards show. "I've got to check in every month. I'm so happy to be out. This is our first time out in months and months, and to be able to come to this thing cancer-free is pretty special." METRO

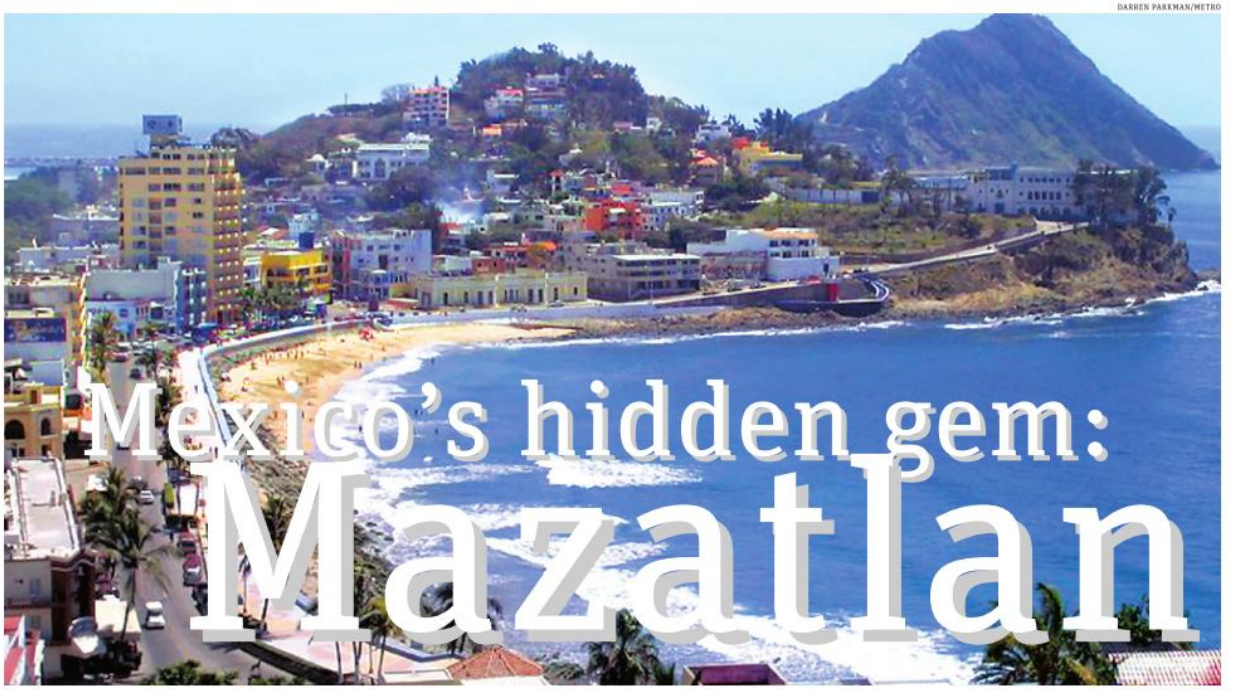
With 10 miles of beaches and the Sierra Madres not too far away, Mazatlan's wonders never cease to amaze ◐ Explore the city's culture, but bull fights aren't for the faint of heart

DARREN PARKMAN/METRO



Mexico's hidden gem: Mazatlan

THE TRAVELLIN' CANADIAN

DARREN PARKMAN
TRAVEL@METRONEWS.CA

Just up the coast from all the hustle and bustle of Puerto Vallarta sits a city known as Mexico's "Pearl of the Pacific."

Little Mazatlan has everything you could ever want in a Mexican resort destination.

The city's Golden Zone features 10 miles of uninterrupted beaches, and in some areas the waves are high enough to attract local and visiting surfers.

During a day tour of the nearby Sierra Madre Mountains, I was fascinated to catch a glimpse of real Mexican culture in a remote village at the foot of the beautiful mountains.

While strolling through this town, which dates back to the 16th century, I came across a church in the middle of nowhere decorated with a beautiful baroque façade and elaborately decorated columns.

The local people couldn't have been more easy going and friendly either.

All this relaxed culture even inspired me to partake in another famous local tradition: the weekly bullfight at the Plaza De Toros Monumentual.

This, I admit, was a mistake. These authentic bullfights are not for the faint-hearted. In fact, they aren't for the strong-hearted either.

FLICKR: ALASKAN DUDE

Be warned, this is a very violent, and bloody event, that never ends well for the poor bull. Surveying the audience of mostly thrilled locals, I noticed I wasn't the only shocked tourist in the crowded arena.

Still, sacrificing bulls is a longstanding tradition dating back to prehistoric times in Europe, and it's nice to know the poor bull isn't wasted.

Spectators are invited to attend a post bullfight barbecue afterwards. I confess, I couldn't quite bring myself to attend that celebration.

I was happy to retreat to an unbroken stretch of golden sand in an area famous for its perpetual summer-like weather. Who needs bullfighting?

Partying & fishing

Hang Out at Joe's Oyster Bar. This is the most fun and famous bar in the city. Located right on the beach, you can gaze out on the bay of Mazatlan and party the night away.

Go fishing for giant marlin. There are no less than eight fleets of charter boats ready to take tourist out year round in search of huge sailfish, marlin, wahoo, shrimp and tuna.

Get an inside look at the oilsands

A thickset man with beefy arms struggles and strains as he tries to heave the metal rod out of the glass jar full of what looks like molasses, only thicker. Much thicker. He grunts a few times, pulls the rod a couple centimetres further out of the black gunk, then gives up and turns around to his wife and son.

"Now that's viscosity," he says, impressed.

Nearby, another family is being impressed by the front end of an enormous dump truck that has wheels twice the height of a man. Outside the building sits giant machinery that is, well, impressive.

BOB WEBER/THE CANADIAN PRESS

At what is probably Alberta's most controversial museum, it's all about the wow.

"A lot of visitors are amazed," says Nancy Dodsworth, director of the Oilsands Discovery Centre in Fort McMurray, Alta., less than an hour's drive from the massive industrial developments themselves. "They're wowed by the size of things."

If you want to get up close and personal with the energy resource that is either Canada's economic future or its environmental shame, depending on who's talking, the Discovery Centre is the place.

Here, you can actually pick up some oilsands and roll it around in your fingers — less gooey than you might think, but it does stain. You can bend down and sniff the stuff, savouring the petrochemical pong somewhere between tar and gasoline.

You can get a demonstration of how the bitumen (the viscous, black stuff in the jar) is separated from the sand. You can climb into the driver's seat of a dump truck taller than many homes and pretend you're churning down the haul road with a full load.

"It's an overall introduction to the oilsands experience," says Dodsworth.

News in brief

From Jan. 18 to 23, 1813, British and U.S. forces clashed at Frenchtown, now Monroe, Mich., on the north bank of the River Raisin.

In the end the British with their Indian allies wiped out an entire American army. The bloodletting — especially the massacre of wounded American soldiers — gave rise to one of the war's American rallying cries: "Remember the Raisin!"

Check out Seattle's slippery salmon

THE TRAVELLIN' CANADIAN

DARREN PARKMAN
TRAVEL@METRONEWS.CA

After you've reached the top of Seattle's famous Space Needle and checked out the stunning waterfront, try putting a grip on a 20-pound flying, slimy salmon!

Seattle's Pike Place Market is about the only place in the world you can give it a try, and believe me, it ain't easy. It's a long standing tradition for market fishmongers to toss a customer's salmon 10 feet through the air to an area behind the counter for wrapping. This unique show attracts tons of tourists daily who gather around to behold the famous flying fish.

After observing these skilled throwers, I decided to try my luck at snatching a mid-air salmon or two. From a good 10 feet away the first one, a big wet 15 pounder, suddenly hit me square between the shoulders, almost knocking me to the ground. Not quite the result I was hoping for. The second fish-missile, which came a few seconds later, I miraculously did manage to somehow snatch out of the air, at least for a few seconds. I desperately attempted to grasp this slimy prize as it slid around before landing unceremoniously on the floor.

Oh well, it's the effort that counts. Pike Place market is a vibrant beehive of activity, with great performing street characters, fresh local produce, and even a very cool magic shop. Just a stones throw from the market is another must see — historic Pioneer Square. Rich architecture, cobblestone streets, galleries and funky bars make up this area, which is Seattle's very first neighbourhood. This is also where some of the city's coolest jazz and rock clubs are found.

Despite all these fun things to do, two of Seattle's hottest tourist attractions still remain the nearby grave sites of Jimmy Hendrix and Bruce Lee. Go figure.

Sights to see

- Tour the Boeing Aircraft plant: This is place where many of the big jets are born. Check out vintage aircraft and the future of aviation. Daily tours even include a rare glimpse of the gigantic new 787.
- Take a streetcar along the waterfront: For an incredibly measly 1 dollar, in off-peak hours, you can ride a vintage trolley along the famous waterfront strip. Here you'll find great seafood, souvenir shops and many other attractions.

Bringing joy to your job

Take the initiative and try soliciting an extra smile

DREW HINSHAW
LIFE@METRONEWS.CA

Misery loves company, and for some companies – where bad moods fester like a corporate curse – the feeling appears mutual.

In this, our aggravating third year in the economic doldrums, career counsellors say all too many businesses are fixating on their bottom line, while their worker morale bottoms out.

Which is ruinous, life coach Christiane Turnheim says, because companies that let their office vibe devolve into a passive aggressive crabapple brawl lose more than their sense of patience or humour. They lose clients, sales, hours everyday worth of productivity, and eventually, those employees themselves.

"The jobs people really like are the ones where they get positive feedback, either from customers, co-workers or management," the Massachusetts-based career coach and Psychology professor says. "Very often, co-workers may not work up to their potential because they feel that nobody notices, recognizes, or appreciates them."

If you find yourself, a relentless optimist, trapped in an office where the social thermostat seems snagged on 'frigid,' be realistic about how much warmth you can bring into the workplace.

"You can't change your boss, and you can't change the culture in your organization," explains Barbara Glanz, author of 180 Ways to Spread Contagious Enthusiasm. "All you can change are your interactions in your own sphere."

That said, a few mere minutes of personable chitchat between colleagues, she says, can leave a mood-boosting half-life that lasts all day.

"Create a human level connection," Glanz advises. "Look people in the eye, listen to what they say, remember their name, connect with them."

"Talk to them about something other than business, to say 'I see you as a human being,'" Glanz adds.

If your water cooler dialogue consistently fails to escape the gravity of company gossip and dreary shop talk, institutionalize some small talk, Glanz recommends.

SLOPPY SEND-OFF ENDS IN LAWSUIT

Employee misconduct may be present but in Canadian workplace law it seldom matters if an employer does not act fairly toward its employee. UPS learned this the hard way in its recent termination of a long term employee.

21-year company veteran Wally Lysecky was only a few years away from retirement when UPS suspected he was accepting kickbacks and, without warning, suspended him from work pending an investigation.

UPS quickly investigated but was unable to find any actual evidence of a theft or fraud. Despite this, it fired Lysecky anyway, believing he must have been involved in some form of wrongdoing.

By then, rumours were flying that Lysecky had been fired for stealing the company's money and, despite its investigation that showed otherwise, UPS did nothing to stop them.

At trial, the Court found that UPS conducted a perfunctory investigation, meaning that Lysecky's fate had been condemned even before the investigation began. Since UPS suspected a fraud, its investigation pre-supposed that Lysecky was part of it.

In finding that UPS did not conduct a neutral investigation, the court overturned Lysecky's termination, awarding him almost one year's salary. It then penalized UPS for its handling of the matter by awarding Lysecky an additional $20,000 for damages to his reputation.

UPS failed to "get it right" before pulling the trigger and it cost them. The difference between a neutral investigation and one with the appearance of bias often makes the difference at trial. There are clear lessons for both employers and employees:

- Workplace investigations should be conducted by a neutral third party investigator, or a lawyer retained for that purpose, not a human resources representative. Even the appearance of partiality can undo the results.
- Employers should resist taking any adverse steps against an employee suspected of fraud, as tempting as it may be, until the investigation is complete.

Should students be allowed to flunk?

Studies show that grade retention – or failing – can be highly detrimental to a student's overall success

Grade retention, also called 'failing,' means that a student is required to repeat the same grade due to lack of achievement.

Research over the past 100 years has shown that grade retention does not benefit students having academic or social adjustment difficulties compared to similar students who are not held back to repeat a grade.

• Students who are required to repeat a grade are more likely to drop out of high school and less likely to attend post-secondary education. Grade retention is one of the most powerful predictors of dropping out of high school, regardless of when retention occurs.

• Grade retention is associated with increased behavioural problems.

• Grade retention can have a negative impact on achievement and social and emotional adjustment.

• Retained students are more likely to have lower educational and employment outcomes during late adolescence and early adulthood.

Some parents and teachers believe that grade retention may be a good practice in certain circumstances, such as if instruction has been inconsistent due to family relocation, or if a student had serious illnesses or emotional trauma.

Researchers advocate alternatives to grade retention, such as early intervention when students experience difficulties; reading programs, summer school, and tutoring while working closely with parents.

Sens find Hiller to be a mountain

DUCKS	SENATORS
2	1

Bobby Ryan scored the only goal in the shootout and Jonas Hiller stopped 39 shots as the Anaheim Ducks beat the Ottawa Senators 2-1 last night.

Hiller was outstanding, sending the Senators (17-23-7) to their third straight loss and ninth in the past 10 games before a sold-out crowd of 19,515.

It was Hiller's 23rd win of the season and the Ducks (26-19-4) have now won five of their past six.

Since captain Ryan Getzlaf went down with sinus fractures after being hit with the puck in the face, the Ducks have gone 8-2-0. They have won in their past three visits to Ottawa.

The Senators are just 8-10-5 at home on the season. Last year, they went 26-11-4.

Anaheim was coming off a 3-2 triumph over the Edmonton Oilers at home on Sunday and faced pressure from Ottawa early on.

The Senators outshot the Ducks 15-10 through the opening 20 minutes, but Anaheim scored the only goal on a strong individual effort by Perry. The star forward outmuscled Erik Karlsson to a rebound in front of Elliott and, while falling to the ice, managed to lift the puck over the Ottawa netminder.

It stayed that way until late in the second when Ottawa finally got to Hiller as Fisher steered a rebound around the goaltender at 18:19 to tie the score 1-1.

Elliott, who had not recorded a win in eight starts since Boxing Day, made 26 stops for the Senators, but he was outduelled by Hiller. THE CANADIAN PRESS

THE HOCKEY NEWS

LOCKE NOT THE ANSWER FOR WHAT AILS SENS

The great Corey Locke Experiment is over and while Locke's treatment in his three games with the Ottawa Senators has been met with indignation in some corners, the fact is if the Senators were looking for a 26-year-old journeyman as the answer to their offensive woes, their troubles are deeper than we ever could have imagined.

Or perhaps not. Their troubles are actually acutely deep. Yes, Locke is a former scoring champion and MVP in the Ontario Hockey League. Yes, he was leading the American Hockey League in scoring at the time of his recall, a status he did not relinquish in his three-game stint with the Senators. Yes, he is creative and talented and probably earned a chance to show his stuff to the NHL team.

But Locke is also trapped in hockey purgatory in many ways. You could make the argument that the former Ottawa 67's star is among a long line of players in hockey history who are too good for the minors, but not good enough for the NHL. Hockey purgatory has claimed many victims. Among those taking up permanent residence are/were Bruce Boudreau, Steve Maltais, Darren Haydar, Brett Sterling, Rich Chernomaz, Jody Gage, Donald MacLean, Fred Glover … the list goes on.

These players are all respectable in their own right, but often don't have the size, strength and/or skating ability to withstand the rigours of the NHL. They often start their NHL tenure with a bang, but almost always fade away after a while. There's little doubt the Senators expected that from Locke, who is already in his fourth professional organization.

The fact is, neither the Senators nor Locke ever really intended for him to be anything more than a fill-in guy. Otherwise, instead of commanding an enormous AHL sum of $250,000 a season and just the NHL minimum of $500,000 on a two-way deal, if Locke truly believed he was more than an AHL commodity he would have taken less to play in the AHL and more to play in the NHL. If the Senators had agreed, they would have been happy to pay it.

You could argue that with three games of fourth-line duty, Locke probably didn't get much of a chance to show whether or not he belongs in the NHL. And he did manage to record his first NHL assist. But Locke probably never envisioned himself as a saviour. And the Senators didn't either.

Engine performance

The Elantra's all-new 1.8-litre four-cylinder engine is smaller than the previous 2.0-litre unit, but the 1.8 puts out 148 horsepower, a gain of 10 over the 2.0.

It's also about 34 kilograms lighter and is rated at 6.8 l/100 km in the city and a seriously impressive 4.9 l/100 km on the highway, the latter value with either the standard six-speed manual transmission, or optional six-speed automatic. That's a large improvement over the 2010 model.

Sonata-like design

The stylists were obviously pretty satisfied with their work on the 2011 Sonata since they clearly stuck to the same basic pattern, albeit in a somewhat smaller scale.

Mid-size status

The end result of Hyundai's artistic handiwork is an Elantra that's only a couple of centimetres longer than the outgoing model, but gains five centimetres between the front and rear wheels and is lower by nearly the same amount.

The result is greater front and rear passenger legroom, while also giving the car a more planted appearance.

▶ "Wow" is the first word that comes to mind when looking at the new Elantra. Although it shares styling cues with the larger Sonata, the Elantra's proportions seem to work a bit better.

New Elantra brings love at first sight

WHEELBASE MEDIA

Hyundai has gone and done it again.

As if stunning new-car buyers with the ultra-sharp Sonata wasn't enough, the hotshot Korean automaker has just introduced its fifth-generation knock-your-socks-off Elantra sedan.

For anyone unfamiliar with the Korean automaker's model lineup, the Elantra slots between the entry-level Accent and the larger Sonata in Hyundai's pecking order.

It was last updated for the 2007 model year and charmed buyers with a combination of generous interior space and extensive standard comfort and safety features.

Those stellar attributes led to a significant uptick in Hyundai converts, despite the fact that the car's nondescript sheetmetal and underwhelming fuel economy numbers garnered tsk-tsk finger wagging from some quarters.

Whether it was stung from such admonishments, Hyundai's all-new 2011 Elantra, which should reach dealers in high volumes by early 2011, addresses both fuel economy and style while improving on several areas where it's already perceived as being dominant.

Dial in a competitive price tag and the Elantra would appear to have mass-transit appeal written all over it.

▶ The interior appears sculpted and crafted, and that's a big compliment for a car in this price range. What's missing? Air conditioning in the base model.

THE FUTURE OF AUTO SOUND IS SPEAKER-LESS

Auto Pilot

MIKE GOETZ
DRIVE@METRONEWS.CA

All the sexy exotics, dramatic concepts, and big introductions of the Detroit auto show can be found on the main floor of Cobo Hall.

Michigan Hall is also part of the show, but down an escalator. It's where you'll find various green-themed exhibits, and a completely normal-looking Toyota Venza.

AVG has already partnered with Bongoivi Acoustics to create the world's first completely digital sound processor accessory certified for automotive use, the Bongoivi DPS (Digital Power Station) now available on all Toyota vehicles.

You audiophiles out there have probably figured out already that this Venza uses transducers.

A transducer is basically just the bottom part of a speaker — the heavier part that makes the top "paper cone" section vibrate. To make sounds, a transducer must find something else to vibrate. In the Venza they vibrate the A-pillar trim panels and the entire headliner. So, yes, it's not really a speaker-less car — because the car's interior has actually become the speaker.

And don't think this is easy.

Rob Hamelink is a chief engineer at Johnson Controls, a world-class auto supplier specializing in interior design and systems, and the third company involved in this speaker-less initiative. He told me that this is not the first attempt to get transducers into vehicles.

"In the past we spent a lot of time, energy and cost, trying to engineer the interior materials to have certain (transducer-friendly) properties."

But these efforts didn't create great sound, and the costs of such systems didn't make them "manufacture-able."

Enter music legend, Tony Bongiovi, and his digital processor technology. Bongiovi gave me this short-form version of how it works: "Basically the DPS has the capability to re-mix the music before it's played in the vehicle. We know what we have to compensate for in the vehicle, and can re-mix the material to fit that environment."

In this way, the interior materials can be regular "cost effective" types.

According to Bongiovi the sound inside the car is also improved over traditional systems, because the sound is, "higher, closer to ear level… Traditional car speakers are located lower, usually in the door panels. In this Venza the sound is coming from above and all around."

▶ Joining the speaker-less Toyota Venza at Detroit was the Johnson Controls "ie:3" — an electric car concept that showcased new battery technology, as well as a similar transducer-based sound system.

Another benefit is weight. "A similar sounding system would weigh twice as much," notes Hamelink. He adds that the technology also enables interior engineers to do something else with the spaces that were previously occupied by large speakers.

The team feels we will see and hear "speaker-less" cars in two or three years. Any interior that will need to be designed or re-designed from this day forward will be a candidate.

SECOND GEAR

JUSTIN PRITCHARD
DRIVE@METRONEWS.CA

After a big, comfortable and upscale coupe? Don't want to spend an arm and a leg? Looking for sizing like a sedan but the expressive and personal appeal of a two-door?

If so, the Chevrolet Monte Carlo might be right for you.

Sure — it's no G35 or 3-Series, but the Monte Carlo's last generation was popular with shoppers after a sporty and comfortable cruiser that wouldn't break the bank.

This front-drive coupe was available in several trim levels and with several engines, as well as a variety of commemorative and special editions. Finding a Monte Carlo that suits your fancy shouldn't pose a problem.

Under the hood, look for a 3.4 litre, 180-horsepower V6. Due to well-documented problems with coolant and head-gaskets, this engine is best avoided.

The recommended engine for a used shopper is GM's staple '3800' 3.8 litre V6 with about 200 horsepower. A supercharged variant was available with 240. All models got a four-speed automatic transmission and drove the front wheels.

Today's horoscope

For today's crossword answers and for expanded horoscopes, go to metronews.ca

♈ Aries March 21-April 20 Be proud of what you have achieved and don't let anyone tell you that you should have done more. Some find it easy to criticize because they aren't good at getting things done.

♉ Taurus April 21-May 21 Accusations will fly today, but none of them will stick to you. As far as the world at large is aware, you are purer than pure. It just shows how good you are at keeping secrets!

♊ Gemini May 22-June 21 Because today's full moon takes place in the money area of your chart, you would be wise not to take risks with your cash. Don't let smooth talking types persuade you there is easy money to be made.

♋ Cancer June 22-July 22 Cosmic activity in your opposite sign means you won't get far on your own, not even with the emotional energy of the full moon behind you. You need other people.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug.23 You may lack enthusiasm for the tasks and chores you are expected to do, but that's okay. There will be plenty of time to catch up. For now, spend some quiet time by yourself to think.

♍ Virgo Aug. 24- Sept. 22 Anything of a creative nature will go well for you today. It will go even better if you make an effort to bring other people into your plans. Let friends and family members know you want them by your side.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23 Do you focus on family matters or do you focus on moving up in the world? Only you can decide. But if it gets a bit emotional on the domestic front today, maybe you should spend more time with loved ones.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22 Socially, the past few weeks have been fun, but there is one group of people who feel you have been neglecting them. Find ways to remind them they are always in your thoughts.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21 There are people out there who think they can pull the wool over your eyes. Be on your guard and watch where your money goes. Suspicion is not always bad.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 20 Today's full moon in your opposite sign will give you the ability to persuade others to chip in and help with the little tasks that bore you. It will leave you more time to focus on your career.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 21-Feb. 18 You will have to get tough with someone who has let you down. If you let them get away with it this time, you can be sure there will be numerous next times.

♓ Pisces Feb. 19-March 20 Believe it or not, some people look up to you as a bit of a role model. Be less inclined to do something which, if it goes wrong, could damage your reputation. SALLY BROMPTON
